

The purchase will strengthen AT& T's low- and mid-band spectrum portfolio and extend its reach across virtually every U.S. market.

Last week, AT& T and EchoStar dropped the news that AT& T will acquire a swath of EchoStar low- and midband spectrum for $23 billion.

AT& T said Tuesday that it's spending $23 billion to acquire certain wireless spectrum licenses from EchoStar, a significant expansion of AT& T's low- ...

AT& T is scooping up spectrum from troubled competitor EchoStar, as the latter seeks to settle ongoing inquiries from the FCC. The pair also struck a new hybrid MNO deal.

Today EchoStar, the parent company of DISH Network, has agreed to sell a substantial portion of its wireless spectrum licenses to AT& T in a deal valued at approximately $23 billion.

EchoStar has agreed to sell $23 billion worth of spectrum licenses to AT& T in a deal spurred by threats made by the Federal Communications Commission to revoke EchoStar's rights to ...

Further, AT& T will acquire approximately 30 MHz of nationwide 3.45 GHz mid-band spectrum and approximately 20 MHz of nationwide 600 MHz low-band spectrum for about $23 billion. ...

AT& T has returned to the M& A spotlight with its $23 billion acquisition of wireless spectrum from EchoStar, announced on August 26, 2025. The move marks the company's largest ...

AT& T said Tuesday that it's spending $23 billion to acquire certain wireless spectrum licenses from EchoStar, a significant expansion of AT& T's low- and mid-band coverage networks.

AT& T is set to purchase $23 billion worth of spectrum licenses from EchoStar, totaling about 50 megahertz (MHz) of nationwide spectrum, the companies announced on Tuesday. The licenses, ...

AT& T has agreed to spend US$23 billion on a raft of spectrum assets from troubled mobile challenger EchoStar, a move that will among other things lead to the latter decommissioning ...

Web: <https://www.tlaetsoglobal.co.za>