

Regulations on China Unicom Optical Cables

With an extensive network infrastructure covering more than 30 countries and regions, we provide services for enterprise and carrier customers around the world. China Unicom owns more than 20 ...

Having recognized the role of submarine cables in carrying both civilian and military communications, China has unveiled a series of cable-laying and repair vessels, both of which also ...

China Unicom has solidly advanced the "Three-Year Action Plan for Mobile Network Quality Improvement" and the "Special Action for Network Operation Quality Enhancement", achieving ...

The European Commission has doubled its anti-dumping duties on optical fibre cables from China, following an investigation which found that Chinese exporters of optical fibre cables were ...

The FCC Chinese Telecom NPRM marks a shift to mandatory enforcement, targeting infrastructure risks and decoupling U.S. and Chinese network interconnections. Continue reading ->

On September 27, 2002, the International Bureau granted China Unicom USA LLC an international section 214 authorization, ITC-214-20020724-00427, to provide global or limited global facilities ...

According to a TeleGeography report, over 95% international data is transmitted this way. Since China's first submarine optical cable, which connected with Japan, launched in 1993, submarine optical ...

The recommendation to amend the International Telecommunication Regulations (ITRs) to include specific provisions on undersea cable security aligns with growing international recognition of the ...

For example, the presumptive disqualifying condition will apply to any initial application for a cable landing license filed by China Mobile International (USA) Inc. (China Mobile USA), China ...

Titled "Report on China's Participation in the Construction and Protection of International Communication Submarine Cables," the document was published by the China Academy of ...

Regulations on China Unicom Optical Cables

Web: <https://www.tlaetsoglobal.co.za>